ed by the County Medical Society. The Rockefeller Institute for Medical which John D. Rockefeller refounded, makes an interesting and portant communication to the public exhaustive report just completed investigation of New York city's milk supply, which was conducted last The institute was founded, as its name indicates, for medical research, and now has nineteen members at work in its general field. Two of these are now in Europe and several of the others are enhere in New York. It was deterhowever, that immediate problems public hygiene were properly within the ope of the institute's activities, and attention was turned to the city's milk supply as one of the most important. It was the ion of the Health Department that uch of the high infant mortality of the city during the summer was attributable to the quality of the milk, on which so many tenement children are nourished, and also that some outbreaks of typhoid fever and other diseases were traceable

This opinion the institute investigators nd to be well founded. The revelations of their report will make interesting reading to citizens of this town; not so much in the disclosure of the perils in impure milk as in the declarations that so little of the milk supplied to the city is of the nighest character and that so much of it s produced, transported and sold under conditions menacing to the welfare of so large a number of human beings. The report, however, is not a raven cry of ill ding, but a guide to better future condi-The institute investigators themselves have produced an improvement in certain directions already, though without any official authority, and the report points the way to the achievement of better con-ditions generally. The possibility of this lies wholly with the public, as an enlightlies wholly with the public, as an enlightened demand must precede a proper supply, and the hope of the institute that its efforts may work a benefit is predicated on a campaign of education. Inspection under authority, which shall have jurisdiction as far as the farms, is advocated;
certification of milk is already unofficially set up as one means of encouraging better conditions, and the sealing of milk produced and bottled at properly regulated sources is mentioned as the best solution of the general problem of bringing the best milk to the city consumer. The report says in part:

The work of personal inspection has now been continued for over eight months and over one hundred farms have been examined. Some of them have been visited again and again for the purpose of watching the carrying out of improvements suggested.

As an example of what may be accomplished by the cooperation of a dealer and an intelligent farmer with the inspector, the following instance is taken from one of the inspector's reports. The inspector was taken by a prominent dealer to visit a farm supplying one of his creameries. As they started toward the stable the farmer apologetically said that the place was not fit for them to enter, but the reply was made that if it was fit for the cows it was good enough for them. The milk-dealer was simply horror-stricken at the appearance presented. The only entrance to the barn was through a yard in whose centre was a stagnant pool surrounded by muck and mire six or eight inches deep. Through this they waded and entered a rather small, low-studded barn. They felt almost suffocated by the heat from the sun streaming through the windows and the foul odors arising from the manure which lay thick upon the floor. A glance showed the dirt-covered cows stamping restlessly while trying to drive away the stinging flies. Taking off his coat the milk dealer called for a hoe, shovel and wheelbarrow and set to work himself to improve matters. Inspired by his example the farmer and his man joined and continued to work until the proper condition of things was brought about. The yard was drained and covered with clean sand, loads of manure were removed from the stable floor and carted off to the fields. The dealer agreed to put in a cement floor the next week, which the farmer promised to the windows were washed and shades were scraped again and again and floods of water pouged on them from a hose until the boards assumed something of their natural color. The windows were washed and shades were scraped again and again and floods of water po

The windows were washed and shades were put up.

The cows, while out in the pasture, were groomed until the dirt was removed; and the long hairs were clipped from their flanks and about the udders. Some of them were washed thoroughly with soap and water. When the cows returned to the freshened barn they stood quietly in the pleasant coolness. When, a few days later, the farmer had put sheathing paper all over the building and whitewashed the walls and had the eement floor completed, the cows of their own accord returned to the barn at mid-day, finding it cooler and more agreeable than the own accord returned to the barn at inid-day finding it cooler and more agreeable than the pasture

The report says that the dairy room was n a par with the conditions at the stable nd that a kindred reform was instituted there. It adds:

there. It adds:

With clean pails, clean cows and clean barn, the farmer felt that his working clothes were too dirty to be worn at milking and when he put on a clean suit he realized that his hands must be clean too, so he washed them before each milking. The result of this labor showed immediately in the improvement of the milk. In samples sent to the laboratory where millions of bacteria had been present there were now only a few hundred. Since that time the barn has been whitewashed twice a week and all utansits and bands and suits have been in prime condition. These facts have been verified by frequent inspection. The pride and gratification of the farmer at the very great reduction of the bacteria which the milk showed wa most encouraging. The majority of the suggestions adopted were not matters calling for great expense, but simply requiring cleantiness, care, and a certain amount of intelligence.

personal cleanliness, that they shall not have or come in contact with contagious diseases, that they shall not use milk from sick cattle, that their milk shall be obtained in a cleanly way, be properly cooled and quickly transported to New York and shall not contain an excessive number of bacteria. It is expected that this milk will be continued to be sold at eight cents per quart in bottles and at six or seven cents when distributed from the stores or wagons.

For those persons who can afford to pay somewhat more for their milk a still finer grade is provided. Not only are the conditions above detailed carried out, but everything which can be practically done to insure most scrupulous cleanliness is added. The cows are groomed, the udders are washed, the men wear clean garments during milking. Precautions are taken in the barn to exclude dirt and bacteria. All utensils are sterilized and regular inspection by experts is continued. The jars containing the milk have on them a label, "Certified by the Milk Commission of the Medical Society of the County of New York." This milk, on account of the greater expense incurred in its production cantonly be supplied at a price considerably higher than the "inspected milk" aiready described.

BILLY' TOWNSEND'S STEP UP.

Yale Men Wen't Like It if It Means That

He's to Leave There. NEW HAVEN, Conn. Jan. 18 .- When it was announced during the past week from Washington that Prof. William K. Townsend of the Yale law school, for many years Judge of the United States District Court, had been nominated by President Roosevelt for Judge of the United States Circuit Court to succeed Judge Nathaniel Shipman of Hartford, who had resigned on account of poor health, there was general rejoicing among the students in the Yale law school over the good luck that came to "Billy" Townsend, as they all call him. For that matter, Yale University at large, for the popularity of Prof. Townsend is not confined to the law department, was well pleased over his advancement.

For the last day or two, however, there has been a feeling that the appointment of Prof. Townsend to the Circuit Court bench may result in the severance of his connection with the law school, and the boys in the school are disappointed over this aspect of the situation. It was said to-day that when Judge Townsend begins his duties on the Circuit Court bench it will necessitate his absence from New Haven to such a great extent that he will have little, if any, time to devote to his duties as professor in the law school. It is, therefore, not at all unlikely that Prof.

is, therefore, not at all unlikely that Prof. Townsend will have to give up his lectures to the students in the law school.

Prof. Townsend has been on the United States District Court bench since March 28, 1892. When he was appointed at that time Judge Shipman, whom he now succeeds, was elevated to the Circuit Court. Prof. Townsend is a New Haven boy and was born here on June 12, 1849. His father was the late Capt. James M. Townsend, who died about a month ago in this city. He studied in the public schools of New Haven and then went to Yale University, entering the academic department. He was graduated from Yale in 1871 and then He studied in the public schools of New Haven and then went to Yale University, entering the academic department. He was graduated from Yale in 1871 and then he decided to enter the law school. In 1874 he got his degree of LL. B. from the law school. In 1881 he received the degree of Doctor of Civil Law from Yale. He was married soon after he graduated from the law school to Miss Mary Leavenworth Trowbridge of this city, a member of one of the first families in New Haven. He was admitted to the bar of Connecticut in 1874, and from the very first took a prominent place in the legal profession in this State. He took a hand in local politics, the result of which was that in 1839 he was appointed Corporation Counsel for the city of New Haven for a term of two years. He was also an Alderman in this city.

Prof. Townsend is prominent as a clubman. In New York city he is a member of the Century, University, and Yale clubs while in New Haven he belongs to the University and the Graduate Clubs. He is a Skull and Bones man of Yale and every little while entertains the men in that society at an elaborate dinner at his home in this city. In the Yale law school he is Edward J. Phelps, Professor of Contracts, Patents and Admiralty Jurisprudence. He has contributed many articles to magazines and is the author of the "New Connecticut Civil Officer" published in 1881.

As a proof of the warm place he has in the hearts of the law school students, he has the record for years of being the most covaling professor in the department this the departn test being by vote of each class. He always stands as a close second in the vote for the best instructor in the law school. The law school men find him very approachable, an invariable characteristic which he shows to every student in the university. GOV. ODELL SUSTAINS CHARGES FILED WITH HIM.

The Sheriff Permitted a Poolroom to Operate Near the Buffalo City Line in Violation of Law-Frank T. Coppins Has Been Appointed by the Governor.

ALBANY, Jan. 18.-Gov. Odell to-day announced that, after careful consideration, he had decided to remove Sheriff Caldwell from office on the charges filed against him for permitting a poolroom to operate just outside the city limits of Buffalo in violation of the law. The Governor appointed Frank T. Coppins Sheriff in the place of Caldwell. The charges against Sheriff Caldwell were filed by Orrin P. Gifford, a Baptist clergyman of Buffalo. With his decision the Governor gave out the following memorandum: I have given the evidence in this matter very careful consideration and have come to the conclusion that in the interest of a proper administration of the office of the Sheriff of Eric county, the present incumbent should be removed. The evidence given by those who appeared in support of the petition convinces me that the existence of the poolroom referred to in the petition was a notorious fact and was well known to the Sheriff, whose duty it was to suppress it.

petition was a notorious fact and was well known to the Sheriff, whose duty it was to suppress it.

The defence offered, that the Sheriff's duties in protecting property at the Pan-American Exposition under an order of the court were of such onerous character that he was not able to give the necessary attention to suppressing this poolroom, shows a lack of appreciation of the responsibilities devolving upon him as the chief peace officer of the county. The repeated demands made upon him to close the place, and the publicity, through advertisement and otherwise, of its existnce was sufficient notice of its operation, and his failure to act renders him liable to the gravest suspicion.

The removal of a constitutional officer elected by the people is always a dangerous procedure, and can be justified only when the evidence is of such a character as to support beyond a reasonable doubt the applicacation for the salutary punishment provided for in the Public Officers act and under the Constitution.

cation for the salutary punishment provided for in the Public Officers act and under the Constitution.

After carefully considering all of the facts in the case, there is no doubt left in my mind that this officer is guilty of wilful neglect of duty. There are but few laws on our statute books which should be more rigorously enforced than those against gambling, because it is too often the beginning of the downfall of men holding responsible fiduciary positions. I feel, therefore, in view of the facts recited above, that there is no alternative left to me except to rebuke the present incumbent in the most forcible way of his failure to perform the duties which the law has imposed upon him.

By virtue of the powers conferred upon me by the Constitution of the State of New York, of the statutes in such cases made and provided, Samuel Caldwell, Sheriff of Erie county, is hereby removed from office.

BUFFALO, Jan. 18.—Frank T. Coppins.

and provided, Samuel Caldwell, Sheriff of Erle county, is hereby removed from office. BUFFALO, Jan. 18.—Frank T. Coppins, the new Sheriff, is superintendent of the largest Sunday school in Buffalo. He is a wealthy painter, 50 years old, and painted nearly all of the Pan-American buildings. His name was the only one suggested by the Buffalo Republican organization when it became known that Gov. Odell intended to remove Sheriff Caldwell. Poolrooms have been operating in Eric county, just outside the Buffalo city line, for many years under both Democratic and Republican Sheriffs. The rival gamblers got in a wrangle and Sheriff Caldwell took sides with the backers of the Illinois Club. Influential politicians had more than a friendly interest in other rooms and helped to arrange the charges against the Sheriff. Those Republican leaders to whom Caldwell naturally would look for aid deserted him, because, it is alleged, they advanced large sums of money to him in his two campaigns for office, which he refused to pay when he got elected. The lawyer who pressed the charges against Caldwell is a law partner of United States Judge John R. Hazel, formerly Republican leader, to whom Caldwell was indebted for his nomination.
